

Jason Spangler, MD, MPH
Chief Medical Officer

Dr. Spangler is Chief Medical Officer at Partnership for Prevention. His portfolio includes immunization policy, the Health Professionals Roundtable, and prevention policy and health system change. Prior to joining Partnership for Prevention, he was a public health and health policy consultant with the Public Health and Policy group at Pfizer Inc. At Pfizer, his work focused on health literacy, public health policy, and partnership management.

Dr. Spangler graduated from the University of Pennsylvania, received a medical degree at the Pennsylvania State University College of Medicine, and completed his internal medicine residency at the University of Pittsburgh Medical Center. Following this residency, he moved to Johns Hopkins, where he completed a general preventive medicine residency and served an additional year as chief resident of the program. He is board certified in general preventive medicine/public health.